IMPART A VERY CONSIDERABLE SNAP TO LOCAL TRADE.

Prices Are Firm to Strong and Are Tending Higher-Grain Arrivals Are in Greater Volume.

Trade yesterday was brisk all along the line, the cooler weather increasing trade in all departments. The dry goods houses were busy. Several advances will be noted 4.45; spring wheat patents, $5.40@5.55. in the different lines of dry goods. In all lines prices are very firm and in some there is an upward tendency. The boot and shoe merchants and hat and cap dealers are enjoying an excellent business. With the blend, 22c; Fancy blend, 18c; Golden blend, 15c. wholesale grocery houses trade was good, with no changes in prices. Prices of all blend, 10.75c; Dillworth's, 11.25c; Mail Pouch, staple groceries are very firm and molasses and syrups have an advancing tendency. In canned goods strong prices are the feature. Florida oranges are on the market in considerable quantity, and are good sellers at prices quoted. Imported grapes are active movers and firm in price. The situation in hides is unchanged, but leather has a hardening tendency and dealers look for higher prices before the month closes. Eggs are very firm at the advance of Monday. Some Southern 2-hoop palls, $1.40@1.50; double washboards, $2.25 eggs are coming into market, but not in | @2.75; quantities to affect prices. There is an active demand for ducks and a better demand for turkeys since the cool weather has prevailed. Provisions are active at the revised quotations of Monday. The local grain market is rather quiet on account of light receipts, as all cereals are in active request at prices quoted. The continued steady tone in wheat results in a firm, steady market for the grades of flour made by local millers. There was continued independent strength in the corn situation, and this gave added impetus to wheat. December opened only a shade higher on these factors, but rose steadily throughout the session. ERNEST THOMPSON SETON.

Animal Lover Has Made a Legal Change of Name.

New York Letter in Philadelphia Press. In the official law journal for the county of New York published to-day there appears an order signed by Judge Bischoff granting the application of Ernest Seton-Thompson for a change of name, authorizing him hereafter to assume the name of Ernest Thompson Seton.

Why the petitioner should have desired to change his name by authority of the court or in any other way after it had become well known through his charming work as | finally made at the decline, but the close an artist and author is not told in the application or in the order of the court. He may have been inspired for the same reason which the distinguished senator who was elected from the State of Florida and who served long enough in the Senate to gain national distinction, as Senator Levy gave when he in a perfunctory, matter of fact way announced to the Senate one day that whereas his name had heretofore been Levy it was thereafter and by permission of the court to be Yulee for reasons entirely satisfactory to himself.

So Voltaire by a similar anagram and without any authority of the courts changed his family name of Arouet to the one which he immortalized. Mr. Thompson is content for reasons that appeal to himself to change his name around, making what was heretofore the middle hereafter the surname. He has recently bought a tract of most romantically and almost inaccessibly wild land of some forty acres in the town of Greenwich. Conn., within rifle shot of the conspicuous electric castle which Andrew Carnegie bariey, 123,000 bu. Shipments-Flour, 21,000 bris; made his home for a year, and some two miles away from the Italian palace which E. C. Benedict built upon the shores of Long Island sound upon the site of Tweed's Americus clubhouse. Mr. Seton, as he is hereafter to be known, will find innumerable small wild animals upon his estate Common to medium sheep 2.00 2.25 and may even hunt the fox and mink and

A Horrible Threat.

And the savage appeal is sent forth by a senator of the United States from the Christian State of South Carolina.

Richard Harding Davis's Wrath.

Springfield Republican. Every one must pause to admire the intrepld courage on the battlefield of Richard | quiet and steady at quotations: Harding Davis, as described by himself in Good to prime steers, 1,350 lbs and his masterly refutation of the possible imputation that General Alger had him in mind when he wrote about "some timid newspaper men" at the battle of Las Guasimas, in his history of the Spanish-American war. General Alger hastens to say that he did not refer to Mr. Davis, which is lucky for him. It is no small peril to impute timidity to a person who has a record for bravery like Mr. Davis's. And others should take heed from this incident and never, never speak of "timid newspaper men in the Santiago campaign lest they should be thought to have Richard Harding Davis in mind. As he says himself, with deep solemnity: "I cannot regard the offense General Alger has committed but as a most serious one. And, if only as a warning to others, who may be emboldened by his example, to thrust through the cloak of history at the men they dislike, General Alger should be publicly condemned." And General Alger is condemned, while the bravery of Richard Harding Davis on the battlefield is worthy of hexameters.

Biggest Stake on the Turf.

Apropos of Mr. William C. Whitney's announcement that he has asked the stewards of the British Jockey Club to place the $30,000 stake won by him at the last Derby at the disposal of some benevolent racing association, the erroneous statement is made that the Derby is the most valuable horse-racing stake in the world.
